CONFLAGRATION.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 22.—Last night Ripon, Wis., was visited by the largest conflagration it ever had. At 12 o'clock midnight a fire broke out in G. Hebe's furniture store, and spread so rapidly that the fire company could not do anything with it, and all the west side of the public square is a mass of ruins: loss about $150,000. The following are the principal losers: William Spurr, $2500; insurance, $1000; J. Kaufmann, $500; no insurance; Clough & Wellcome, $2000; insurance, $1000. Dr. Rogers, $85,000; insurance, $4500. First National Bank, $3000; insurance, $2000. T. D. Stone, $6000; insurance, $4500. Everz & Willard, $2400; insurance, $1200. Nohl Bros., $15,500; insurance, $10,000. J. J. Foot, $10,000; insurance, $6000. J. Gebbe, $6000; insurance, $4500. J. Apple, $9000; insurance, $6000. H. Dauben, $11,000; insurance, $4700.

PRETTY GOOD.

Jno. Bacon, Laporte, Ind., writes: "Your 'Spring Blossom' is all you cracked it up to be. My dyspepsia has all vanished; why don't you advertise it; what allowance will you make if I take a dozen bottles, so that I could oblige my friends occasionally?" Price 50 cents trial bottles 10 cents.

MILWAUKEE MATTERS.

MILWAUKEE, March 22.—The political affairs of this city have assumed an interesting shape, owing to the somewhat mixed state of affairs, and the candidates put forward as the supposed nominees at the Republican convention held Friday are legion in numbers, but it seems a settled fact that the nomination will be insisted either upon Paine or ex-Governor Harrison Lindington, the latter being a dark horse. The Workingmen's and Democratic parties will probably unite on Mr. J. N. Stowell, though the leaders make a weak denial of this, and claim that there is no probability of fusion.

PROOF POSITIVE.

We have the most positive and convincing proof that THOMAS' ELECTRIC OIL, is a most effective specific for bodily pain. In cases of rheumatism and neuralgia it gives instant relief.

Sold by A. J. Roberts and F. Sherer & Co.

COMMUTED.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 22.—The Governor has commuted the sentence of John Gales to imprisonment for life. He was to have been hanged Friday in Chicago. The Governor believes Gales a hereditary imbecile.

A TWO-HEADED MONOPOLY.

New York, March 22.—The Post says it is now beyond question that Jay Gould and those who work with and for him have secured at a price not given the majority of the capital stock of the Mutual Union Telegraph company. From this fact it does not follow there is to be a consolidation of two companies, but simply that they will work in harmony instead of rivals.

NO SUCH WORD AS FAIL.

"I have used your SPRING BLOSSOM for dyspepsia, headache, and constipation, and find it has done me a great deal of good. I shall recommend it to my friends." HENRY BERTOLLETTI, May 24th, 96 Main St., Buffalo. Price 50 cents; trial bottles, 10 cents. For sale by A. J. Roberts and Sherer & Co.

POLITICAL.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 22.—The Democratic State convention made the following nominations: Horace A. Kimball, governor; J. G. Perry, lieutenant-governor; Jonathan M. Wheeler, secretary of State; Francis L. O'Reilly, attorney general; Arnold L. Burdick, general treasurer.

WHITTAKER RELEASED.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The President has issued a formal order disapproving the sentence of the court martial in the Whittaker case, and ordered his dismissal from arrest.

Love Your Neighbor.

When your friend or neighbor is laboring under bodily affliction, indigestion, biliousness, constipation, caused by impurity of blood, or disorders of the kidneys or liver, don't fail to recommend BROWN'S BLOOD PURIFIER, a sure and safe remedy. Price $1.00, trial size 10 cents.

Sold by A. J. Roberts and Sherer & Co.

A MYSTERY CLEARED UP.

ROCKFORD, Ill., March 22.—Great excitement was created in this city this evening over the finding of the body of the missing man, H. W. Loomis, who so mysteriously disappeared from this city four weeks ago. Last Monday two boys were playing on the fair grounds and saw the body in Kent's Creek. They notified the coroner, who resides near by. On examining his clothing everything was found intact. It is evident that he wandered away and fell into the creek, and the story of his being murdered and thrown into the river is cleared up. He was quite a wealthy citizen and a large property owner here. He leaves a wife and three children.

RED-BUGS, ROACHES.

Kats, mice, ants, flies, vermin, mosquitoes, insects, &c., cleared out by "Rough on Kats." 15c. boxes at drugists.

OBITUARY.

CLINTON JUNCTION, March 22.—This evening Thos. Taylor, and old resident of Milwaukee, died at the residence of his son Arthur E. Taylor, the Clinton photographer, while fighting the insidious encroachments of a fatal kidney affection.

Mr. Taylor is well-known among the builders of Milwaukee with whom he was actively associated until the disease which has finally taken him from life fastened itself on his system. Latterly he has served the Government as foreman of light house builders on Lake Michigan and Green Bay, and in this arduous service has endured hardships and pushed the work of construction and repair in the face of danger, with the spirit and vigor of youth combined with the judgment of the veteran that he was. His counsel and service will be sadly missed by the lighthouse band.

Mr. Taylor was connected with the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and was considered one of the most prominent members of the State. His active interest in the workings of the institution had much to do with its advance and growth in this city and the State at large. So fully were his services appreciated by the members of the Order that a number of years ago a lodge was instituted on the West Side and named

"Taylor Lodge." It still flourishes as one of the bright stars in the corona of Badger State lodges. Mr. Taylor's remains will be brought here for interment on Friday, and will be laid by the side of his wife and sons in the Forest Home cemetery, with the rites and ceremonies due one who has been an active and faithful co-worker among Odd Fellows.

GOVERNMENT AID.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The secretary of war has replied to the resolution of the House asking for an estimate of persons made destitute by the overflow of the Mississippi river, and how long it was thought they would have to be supported, in which he states that the number of persons now receiving subsistence is about $5,000. The $100,000 appropriated sufficed to purchase 800,000 rations, and this supply was exhausted on the 20th in Arkansas, Mississippi, and Louisiana, and would be in the other States affected about the 30th inst. No further demands are expected from Illinois or Kentucky, but from Missouri, Tennessee, Arkansas, and Mississippi the department has information that the need of assistance will continue for a period variously estimated at from thirty to sixty days from date. No information on which to base an estimate as to time has yet been received from Louisiana, except that the character of the disaster is the same as in Mississippi and Arkansas. The table was also submitted showing the number of rations sent to the States overflowed, from which the following figures are taken:

Missouri—25,000 rations to 2,200 destitute persons.
Illinois—39,000 rations to 2,000 destitute persons.
Kentucky—15,000 rations to 800 destitute persons.
Tennessee—2,000 rations to 5,000 destitute persons.
Mississippi—250,000 rations to 30,000 destitute persons.
Arkansas—150,000 rations to 30,000 destitute persons.
Louisiana—216,000 rations to 25,000 destitute persons.

A REIGN OF TERROR.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 22.—There is a reign of terror at Laramie City, fifty-six miles west of here. Incendiaries have been at work for four nights past and fires occurred every night, some of them very costly. There was no distinction as to class of property, railroad buildings, hotels, and dwelling-houses suffering alike. Vigilants have been patrolling the streets for three nights and run in about twenty strangers, but fires would start up on all sides. The prisoners were released. The terror is great, because the people do not know what to expect next, for the reason that they do not know whom to suspect. There will be a necktie party if the offenders are caught.

A Fiend in Human Form.

He was a gentlemanly and affable looking man who walked into the managing editor's room of the San Francisco Post, and quietly took a chair until that accomplished journalist had finished an editorial with the scissors.

"What can be for you?" asked the editor, finally replacing the paste-brush behind his ear. "Haven't brought in a poem on autumn?" he continued, frowning suspiciously.

"Not at all, my dear sir," replied the stranger, with a smile. "I trust I don't look like a poet. I have dropped in to consult you on a practical business proposition."

"Ay! an advertisement," said the journalist, benignly. "Something on the 'star ad.' line, I suppose?"

"In a certain sense, yes," replied the business man. "I want to know your best inside rates for hounding."

"For what?" asked the writer.

"Why, for hounding. I should like to be thoroughly well-hounded in your paper for the next say three months, if it didn't come too high."

"What the devil?"

"Permit me to explain," interrupted the matter-of-fact customer. "I am an attentive reader of the local papers, and I notice that whenever a man, a corporation, or a monopoly has a streak of good luck, or gets to making money rapidly, the said papers immediately 'jump on his neck,' as the saying is, and hound the successful person or persons as though he or they were escaped convicts, or something like that."

"You mean our blackmail contemporaries?" said the editor, vindictively.

"I don't think they blackmail anybody in particular," said the stranger, thoughtfully, "that is, not now-a-days; the people seem to have 'dropped on it,' as the hoodlums say; but that isn't the point that affects me. The point is that of course these papers never hound anybody who hasn't got dead loads of coin. Everybody recognizes the fact, and the result is that the minute they start in against a man, his credit goes right up."

"I begin to drop," said the monster of public opinion, scratching his head.

"Why, of course. It's a dead sure proposition; and so it occurred to me, as my business has been dreadfully bad this year, that I'd have to brace up my credit or go under. I've got to do it or bust. Now if I can arrange for your paper to come out to-morrow afternoon with a slashing article accusing me of being a grasping monopolist or a bloated corruptionist, or something else rich and comfortable, it would about fix me up."

"It's a big idea," said the editor, calmly, "and you'd better go down and see the business manager at once. I'll write an editorial myself calling attention to you as a bigamist and a swindler of orphans and widows."

"Do so," exclaimed the far-seeing business man, and he arose to go.

"Whatever you do, don't spare me. I've got a $12,000 note to meet on the 17th so you must get your work in at once."

"I'll attend to it," said the editor, earnestly. "I'll work over your early career myself, and have three or four affidavits accusing you of bribery and brutality, ready for next Saturday's double sheet. I'll send our most sarcastic reporter round to interview you bright and early Monday morning." "Thanks," said the customer, fervently. "I begin to see my way clear already. God bless you!" and he tripped down stairs with heart full of hope and encouragement, while the editor at once set to work on a leader entitled "A Fiend in Human Shape."

THE Carleton (Mo.) Journal says: The girl who saves all her kisses for her husband, and risks final rupture with her sweetheart rather than compromise her stand for prudence, will be the wife whose sweetness will not grow stale with her husband and whose honeymoon will never end. Respect, even with the impulsive lover, will grow stronger with woman's barrier against unwarranted familiarity. The young man who can't put up with his sweetheart's resolution to be absolute mistress of her prudence is unworthy of her contentment, and the sooner she gives him the grand bounce the faster will she rise in the eyes of her own and all sensible people's respect.

SOME one who has taken the trouble to look the matter up says that Kansas contains as many people of foreign birth as do the States of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Tennessee and West Virginia combined.—Leavenworth Times.

"I HAVE divided my subject," began the person, "into two heads." "Two heads with but a single thought," whispered Fogg to Mrs. F., and then he closed his eyes for his usual nap.

Grateful Women.

None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women. It is the only remedy peculiarly adapted to the many ills the sex is almost universally subject to. Chills and fever, indigestion or deranged liver, constant or periodical sick headaches, weakness in the back or kidneys, pain in the shoulders and different parts of the body, a feeling of lassitude and despondency, are all readily removed by these Bitters.

Meteorite Stones.

The meteorites in the British Museum are arranged thus: 1, aerolites, which are rocky masses composed principally of silicates with isolated particles of nickeliferous iron and troilite interspersed; 2, aeroiderites or siderites, masses of native iron containing phosphides of nickel and iron, troilite and occasionally carbon; siderolites, which partake of the character of both aerolites and siderites, being porous or spongy masses of nickeliferous iron with silicates in the cavities. Of these three classes the first is the commonest, the number of specimens possessed by the museum being 211, the largest of which weighs 131 pounds. Of siderites there are 114 specimens in the collection, the largest weighing over three and a half tons; and of siderolites there are twelve specimens, the weight of the largest being nearly sixteen pounds. In 1664, Paolo Maria Tarzago, an Italian physicist, surmised that aerolites might be of selenic origin. Others, in 1795, without any knowledge of this conjecture, investigated the amount of the initial tangential force that would be requisite to bring to the earth masses projected from the moon, Laplace, Biot, Brandes and Poisson also took up the problem. Others, Brandes and Chladni decided against the view of a selenic origin; but Laplace seems to have inclined somewhat to that hypothesis. It was then believed that active volcanoes existed in the moon; but that idea has been abandoned and the lunar aerolites with it. At the present time a number of eminent men who have studied the subject of meteorites, think that they must have been ejected from volcanoes on some celestial body, probably the earth at a remote period of its physical history. This may be the true theory, but facts are wanted to confirm it, and until those are discovered it is not safe to pass judgment.—Times.

The Oyster.

The oyster is a very fortunate creature, if it be fortunate to be much mentioned in history. People who have swallowed an enormous number of oysters figure in anecdote, and are considered to have done something meritorious. The Roman who first formed oyster beds, which he did at Baie, is known to have been named Sergius Orata, who had the happiness to live to the time of Augustus, and who is known to have made a great deal of money by the opening of the great bay. To-day it is mentioned in the encyclopedias that Apicius, a contemporary of Trajan, was the first who taught the world how to pickle oysters. His fame rests upon that fact. There was another Apicius distinguished for his love of lobsters; there was another who set up a school of cooks; but the oyster-pickling Apicius has a distinct fame, and survives freshly in classical dictionaries. When George I. came to England from Hanover the royal cooks could not please the royal palate in the matter of oysters until it was discovered that the Majestic liked them stale, and that right angles with the habit of eating them. When Mr. Thackeray first came to Boston certain of his admirers asked him to supper. There were, among other delicacies, gigantic oysters. The novelist could not comprehend that he was to swallow one of these in an undivided state, but, being shown the way and having accomplished the feat, he observed that he felt "as if he had swallowed a baby."

The Nose and the Face.

A somewhat singular fact has been observed with reference to the shape of the nose, or rather the setting of it in the face, so to speak. To be strictly correct, from the artist's point of view, the nose should be accurately in the middle of the face, and the right angles with a line from the pupil of one eye to that of the other. As a matter of fact, it is rarely or never thus placed; it is almost invariably a little out of the "square," and the fact of its being so is often that which lends a peculiar expression and piquancy to the face. A medical writer points out that there are anatomical reasons why a slight deviation from the true central line may be expected, and that the nose which is thus accurately straight between the two eyes may after all be considered an abnormal one; the only absolutely true and correct organ being, in fact, that which deviates a little to the right or left.—Phrenological Journal.

FARM AND FIELDSIDE.

—The newest bracelets are of gold coin, from one dollar up to the double eagle.

—In spite of drouth and chinch bugs, Kansas, according to the latest reliable estimates, will have this season about 100,000,000 bushels of corn.

—When a farmer neglects or refuses co-operation with his brother farmers, he strikes a blow at the advancement of his class and becomes his own worst enemy.—Exchange.

—During the recent Arkansas State Fair at Little Rock, Sam Morrow, colored, of Washington County, took the first premium on wheat. The wheat was a splendid variety, and weighed nearly sixty-eight pounds to the bushel.

—Powdered rosin is said to be the best thing to stop bleeding from cuts. After the powder is sprinkled on, wrap the wound with a soft cotton cloth. As soon as the wound begins to feel feverish, keep the cloth wet with cold water.

—The breeder who can bring to notice a breed of fowls that will eat potato bugs has a fortune in his hands. They are a desirable want on all potato fields. Bugs are usually plenty. Where is the breed of fowls that will destroy them.—Denver Tribune.

—If Ohio, in place of her 600,000 dogs, was to keep the same expense on the same number of pigs, the figures would stand something like this: 300,000 pigs kept one year would dress 60,000,000 pounds of pork, worth $4,000,000. This would be an equal gain, whereas now the loss on sheep killed by dogs foots up into the millions.

—I was taught that fence posts should be seasoned, but a trial of bar posts set green, seem to disprove it. Feeling encouraged in that direction, my brother, about June 1, 1845, sawed from thrifty white oak trees, posts for a fence in front of our house. They were six by six inches at the butt, three by six inches at top, and were set at once. The fence is now standing, and is in fair order, only two posts having been renewed in the thirty-six years. We have proved on this farm that chestnut posts are more durable if cut and peeled, and placed directly in the ground.—Cor. Country Gentleman.

—Nothing improves the appearance of the waitress at a table so much as a neat and tasteful apron. At a recent entertainment given in a church parlor a few very pretty aprons were worn. One was of white dotted muslin trimmed with a ruffle edged with Valenciennes lace; another was of plain muslin with two deep fluted ruffles of the same, with black velvet heading. Another had Valenciennes insertion put over blue ribbons, and still another was of plain white linen with a wide hem and a broad band of ric-rac above that. Daintier than any of these, but less serviceable, was one of pale pink silk with a deep muslin flounce put on in plaits.

Sheep and Goats.

There has suddenly sprung up an old idea of protecting sheep against dogs by adding a goat or two in the flock to drive the dogs away, etc. But this has hardly made its appearance before it is contradicted. A gentleman of Washington writes in a New York paper that it will not be tried more than once. He trained a pair of Angora goats (a buck and ewe) on one occasion to range with his sheep for the latter's protection; but the "buck could jump any fence in the county, and could climb any tree growing in the corner of a rail fence by first getting on the fence and then into the tree. In quite a short time every wether I had was as good a jumper as the Angora buck, and had I not converted them into mutton I would have had a valuable flock of sheep ruined. Kill the dogs but keep the sheep and goats separate here as well as heretofore.

If the plentiful use of bells will not protect sheep, herding or yarding should be resorted to. The expense of erecting a rough fence, say seven feet in height, and of course impenetrable to dogs, from one hundred to one hundred and fifty feet square, is nothing to compare to the loss of sheep. A fence solidly built of rails, poles, etc., would last the best part of a score of years, and there would be no trouble of gathering the sheep into it when once accustomed to it.—German-town Telegraph.

Raise Your Own Fish.

By attaching a pump, propelled by the wind, to a well you can supply a basin from fifty to seventy-five feet in diameter and six to eight feet deep, with water sufficient to raise several thousand carp or other fish. The cost of this pond and appurtenances need not exceed fifty dollars. The bottom and sides need to be cemented thoroughly. When the basin is complete, place in it a small quantity of brush or floating weeds. If you intend to raise carp, do not place other fish of a predatory character in the pond. The spawning will occur during the spring months, the female laying from 50,000 to 600,000 eggs. The eggs will adhere to whatever they touch, and will soon hatch. The green swim of a partially stunted pond is fine food for the young fish. Mud in the bottom of the pond is beneficial. The fish will feed readily on kitchen-garden refuse, such as cabbage, leek, lettuce, hominy or other substances. Water seldom becomes too warm for these fish. During freezing weather they bury themselves in the mud at the bottom of the pond. While in this condition they should not be disturbed. In a pond of the given dimensions several thousand fish have annually been taken.

Grass grows profusely about the borders of the pond, so much better for the fish. In two years' time you can have an abundant and constant supply of sport and food, and the advantage of a pond to assist in beautifying your home.—Detroit Post and Tribune.

Corner in Quills.

"There has been such a demand for vaccine virus that some shrewd fellow actually got up in the corner in quills," said Dr. S. B. Bort, house physician of the Dispensary, Essex Market.

"Most of the quills used by physicians are Austrian quills. Those raised in this country are not generally large enough. An ordinary quill will make four 'points,' or slips. First the feather end is cut off; next the other end, leaving a tube of the clear, hard, transparent, horny part of the quill. This is too smooth to retain the virus, so it is scraped at each end to make it rough. The ends are then dipped, and the quill is split into four slips. They are sold at $10 per hundred. Single slips are sold at twenty-five cents each. As there have been more persons vaccinated within the past six weeks than in the preceding ten years, the demand for quills has raised the price from $11 to $12.50 per gross. A very good substitute for quills is made from ivory chips. One dealer recently gave an order for 100,000 of these ivory points. Each ivory point will vaccinate two persons. Sometimes glass tubes are used to dip in the virus; but they are more expensive.—N. Y. Sun.

The Forging of Steel.

Steel is one of the most valuable metals used in the mechanic arts, and requires great care in forging, hardening, tempering, and in the general management. Tons of the very best steel are condemned as bad, when nothing but the forging has reduced it to that condition, and all from a lack of knowledge in the management.

In forging cast steel the fire should be regulated by the size of the work. (I prefer a hollow fire to be fed with coke.) To ascertain the heat of the steel, draw it out of the fire often, for it requires to be carefully watched to get the proper heat. If not hot enough, thrust it quickly in again. The proper degree of heat is to be judged by the eye, and care should be taken not to heat higher than is absolutely necessary to effect the desired purpose, and to use as few heats as possible. Too frequent heating and overheating steel abstracts the carbon, gradually reducing it to the state of forged iron. It is the opinion of a great many that, so long as the steel does not fly to pieces when struck with the hammer, it is not too hot; but it is an erroneous idea, as is easily proved when it comes to be hardened, and particularly when it comes to be used.

An excellent composition for welding cast steel is prepared by boiling together sixteen parts of borax and one of sal ammoniac over a slow fire for an hour. When cold, grind it into a powder. The steel must then be heated as hot as conveniently bear, and the composition used the same as sand.

Steel punches, or other small instruments, particularly engraved dies, when, by accidental exposure to too great heat they have become spoiled, or, as the blacksmith says, burned, may be restored by the following mixture: Two ounces of bichromate of potassa, one ounce pure niter, one ounce gum aloes, one ounce gum arabic and two ounces of resin. The whole having been well powdered and mixed, the piece of steel is heated to a low, red heat, and the powder sprinkled over it. It is then heated again to a low, red heat and cooled. This makes the piece very hard again. The amount of niter may be doubled, and that of the resin taken ten times greater to produce a higher temper.

In tempering a tool for boring cylinders, turning rolls, or any large pieces of cast iron, let it be as hard as water will make it, taking care not to heat it more than to a cherry red. In the second heating, after the tool is hardened, the first perceptible tint is a light straw color, which makes its appearance when the heat reaches 430 degrees Fahrenheit. This gives the metal a maximum of hardness, with a certain amount of elasticity, fitting it for lancets, razors and surgical instruments. At 470 degrees a full yellow is produced, which is the temper employed for penknives, scalpels and fine cutlery. The temperature of 490 degrees gives a brownish-orange, suitable for shears and chisels used for cutting iron. At 510 degrees the brownish-yellow becomes flecked with purple, the tint for pocket-knives. Five hundred and twenty degrees gives a bluish purple, fit for table cutlery; while the different shades of blue from 530 degrees to 570 degrees indicate a temper proper for watchsprings, sword blades, saws and instruments requiring great elasticity. Beyond this temperature the metal becomes too soft to be used for cutting instruments.

The temper greatly depends on the quantity of carbon that is in the steel. This the practical man soon finds out, and he tempers or draws down the tool accordingly.

In Switzerland, razors, pocket-knives, etc., made from English cast steel, are tempered by immersing the blades at a dark cherry red into a bath composed of four parts of finely powdered yellow resin, two parts of fish oil, to which is added, in a very hot state, one part of melted tallow, and allowing them to cool perfectly; after which they are heated without wiping them, and hardened in water in the ordinary way. The blades hardened by this process are found to be more uniformly tempered than by any other, making it possible to produce an exceedingly fine cutting edge.—Prof. Bodewick, in American Machinist.

The Panic at Lyons.

The aspect of the great City of Lyons, crushed as it is by the great financial panic, is both lamentable and terrible. The situation of things is so complicated so chaotic, that after twenty-four hours of close study, many knowers of the city begin to despair. So I am obliged to put off until tomorrow the thousand details of the catastrophe, which has nearly ruined the second city of France from top to bottom and from bottom to top. The exaggerated speculation into which the whole city has been dragged is such that the loss of the brokers is estimated at an enormous figure. For the present I prefer to accept the sum which the Chamber admits, namely—36,000,000 of francs. You must understand that these millions do not include the individual losses of each member on "Change," as each one has been speculating on his own account. To the contrary, this only constitutes what is owing to brokers from their customers, who had heavy margins deposited to their credit, but not heavy enough for this terrible break in the market. The result is that until they can ward off total disaster the brokers have suspended payments. A heavy cloud of sorrow hangs over the city like a pall. As yet they dare not uncover the ruins—the total failures, the positions of the most honorable men are so fearful, that many of them are on the verge of suicide. The loss of the millionaires, or rather the ex-millionaires, everybody has lost. No one has the first sou toward a settlement.

A man who is above all suspicion of dishonesty came to see his agent, and said: "I have 500,000 francs; here it is. Take it. It's all I can give you on the 3,000,000 which I lost. What do you want me to do about the difference? If I commit suicide will it change anything? I would willingly do that but could they make gold or bank notes out of my blood?"

One must recognize the fact that, if all who can't pay their differences for the end of the month commit suicide, this city, La Croix, Rousseau and Brotteau will become vast cemeteries. Business is totally suspended. The numerous groups in the street talk only of disaster, and the women and children weep without knowing the why or wherefore. The women themselves had "taken a hand." Widows, shop-girls, and the "cabotines" of the cafe concerts and second-rate theaters carried their wages to the bourse and won. Now they have lost, pay nothing.

The bourse is open but there is no business transacted. Not a quotation was made during the whole day. A few of the terrified sold for cash a few City of Lyons bonds, or shares of the Credit Foncier hid the money and took the first train for Geneva. So far, a young man has suicided in a bath, and
